

PRODUCT DATA SHEET

Indium Sulfide

Introduction

Indium sulfide (In_2S_3) is an orange-red to red-colored chemical with a sulfur odor characteristic of all sulfides. It is insoluble in water and most organic solvents but decomposes in common mineral acids, releasing hydrogen sulfide gas.

Indium sulfide is used primarily as a buffer layer in copper-indium-diselenide (CIGS) photovoltaic solar cells, replacing toxic cadmium sulfide. It functions as an n-type semiconductor with an optical band gap of 2.1–2.2 eV. The indium sulfide buffer layer can be deposited using vacuum chemical vapor deposition or DC magnetron sputtering. Indium sulfide is available in 99.99% or 99.999% purities as a powder or compressed pellets.
